

Leaving a Legacy

Volume 33, Issue 1

July 2007

President's Message: Jan Schumacher Muhlenberg College

"There are certain things that are fundamental to human fulfillment. The essence of these needs is captured in the phrase 'to live, to love, to learn, to leave a legacy'. The need to live is our physical need for such things as food, clothing, shelter, economical well-being, health. The need to love is our social need to relate to other people, to belong, to love and to be loved. The need to learn is our mental need to develop and to grow. And the need to leave a legacy is our spiritual need to have a sense of meaning, purpose, personal congruence, and contribution" Stephen R. Covey

The exec board found out at our retreat in June that I love quotes and inspiration stories. I have my own personal stash of Chicken Soup for the Soul books as well as items I've collected from my years in Residence Life. The above quote fits in well with this year's annual conference of Leaving a Legacy. Co-chairs, Lynn Burke from Gettysburg College and Kaycee Palko from Carnegie Mellon University, have been hard at work with their committee to provide us a conference filled with quality sessions, Dr. Maggie Culp as our keynote speaker, and plenty of opportunities for connecting with colleagues from around the state. Please plan to join us in Monroeville, PA from October 14 – 16, 2007.

I looked back at what I wrote when I ran for President-elect. I noted that what has kept me involved in PCPA are the people and connections I have made during my tenure with the association. I still feel strongly that PCPA's strength lies in its members and their involvement in organization. Please consider getting involved in the Association by helping out with a Keystone, joining a commission committee, writing an article for the newsletter, or submitting a topic to discussion over the list serve. Also remember you have resources on the executive board should you have questions or feedback. Feel free to contact your Member-At-Large (MAL) or another member of the executive board, we'd be happy to hear from you!

It's also important to recognize the time and talents of the members of the executive board whose term has ended. My sincere thanks go out to Mary Ellen Bayuk, Terry Wigle, Shirley Rodgers, Laurie Verost, and Brian Mauro. Additionally let's welcome members who are either new to the board or to their position.

- President-Elect – Dan Kennedy, Carnegie Mellon University
- Membership Commission Chair – Amber Valentine, Indiana University of Pennsylvania
- Communication Commission Chair – David Falletta, Washington and Jefferson College
- Two-Year Member at Large West – Kelly Carpenter, Westmoreland County Community College
- Four-Year Member Private East – Cindy Nguyen, Penn State Lehigh Valley
- Four-Year Member Public West – Ted Cogar, Indiana University of Pennsylvania
- Webmaster (now an exec board position) – Bryan Valentine, LaRoche College

Generally while the summer has gotten busier each year, I also see it as a time to reflect, to plan, and to renew oneself for the up coming academic year. So I hope you have the time to do all these things. Remember to take some time for yourself whether it's to learn a new hobby or skill, catch lightning bugs, to spend time with family and friends, go out and put your face up to the sun, or maybe even read some books for fun.

Hope to see you in Monroeville in October!

Best,

Jan Schumacher

PCPA 2007 Conference Speakers

Monday afternoon Keynote Speaker

Dr. Maggie Culp

Co-editor of Community College Student Affairs: What Really Matters (2005), Life at the Edge of the Wave: Lessons from the Community College (1998), and Promoting Student Success in the Two-Year College (1995), Maggie Culp has thirty years experience as a vice-president, dean, faculty member, teacher, change agent and motivational speaker in Florida, Massachusetts, Texas, and Virginia.

A nationally recognized leader in student affairs, an expert on institutional effectiveness and an inspirational speaker, Maggie Culp served on eighteen Southern Association Reaffirmation Teams (SACS), created a student affairs program recognized by SACS as a "model for the nation," designed an enrollment management/student success model used by many institutions across the country, and led a major computer conversion (legacy to Datatel) that was labeled a "best practice" implementation. The recipient of numerous state and national awards, Maggie Culp has motivated and educated thousands with her presentations at national and state conventions, designed and facilitated hundreds of workshops for educators and business leaders, and is currently assisting thirty-two colleges and universities to evaluate and redesign Student Affairs, implement cultures of evidence, build partnerships between Academic and Student Affairs that increase student success, and create enrollment management/student success models for a new generation of students and faculty.

Maggie Culp earned an M.A. in Counseling, an Ed.S. in Administration and Supervision, and an Ed.D. in Curriculum and Instruction (with concentrations in Counseling Psychology, Research Methods, and Educational Leadership). She is MBTI, TQM and Baldrige trained and has written extensively about assessment, building and leading teams, community colleges, applying the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator to business and education, creating cultures of evidence, developing student learning outcomes, the importance of partnerships between Academic and Student Affairs, teaching styles, leadership styles, legal issues in higher education, motivating students and faculty, strategic and operational planning, student affairs, conflict resolution techniques, and the intelligent use of technology.

2007 Conference HighlightsCreating and Implementing a Comprehensive Assessment PlanPresenter: Jan Arminio, Shippensburg University

Program Abstract: Integrating a CAS (Council for the Advancement of Standards in Higher Education) review within a comprehensive assessment program can lead to sustainable leading and learning. This interactive session takes participants through the 7 steps of conducting a CAS review including data collection and interpretation for designing an action plan. It also will situate a CAS review within a comprehensive assessment model for the purpose of shaping and enhancing student learning.

Understanding TransgenderPresenter: Jennifer de Coste, Penn State Altoona

Program Abstract: This is a basic workshop all about what it means to be male, female, both, neither, or something else. We'll discuss some of the everyday challenges transgendered people might face on college campuses, view a short film, and review practical steps colleges can take to be proactive in relation to trans issues.

Multiple Perspectives on Legacy

Presenter: Dr. Linda M. Hall, Indiana University of Pennsylvania

Program Abstract: We all wonder how we will be remembered – the mark that we will leave. What impact will I have as a professional? How do others see me and my work? What will I be proud of at my retirement? This program features a panel of professionals at different stages in their careers to discuss their thoughts about leaving a legacy. This interactive discussion will be based on Kouzes and Posner's book on Legacy and Leadership.

ASK Standards: A Road Map for Success

Presenters: Amanda R. Knerr and Robert Domingo, Penn State University

Program Abstract: Does the word "assessment" cause you anxiety? Do you feel unprepared to conduct assessment? Using ACPA's ASK (Assessment Skills and Knowledge) Standards, we will discuss "What do I need to know?" and help you create a professional development road map to develop skills needed to Leave a Legacy of success.

Partnerships for Diversity

Presenter: Barbara Johnson, Carlow University

Program Abstract: In small campus environments, a diverse, culturally rich community does not always exist. How can student affairs professionals create unique opportunities that enhance the collegiate experience of students so that they are exposed to professionals and role models whose diversity can enhance the success of students?

Multiculturalism as Advanced Citizenship: Repositioning Diversity Education

Presenter: Brian C. Johnson, Susquehanna University

Program Abstract: How can educators prepare students to demonstrate courage and commitment to address complex community problems and broader social issues of diversity? This session will focus on repositioning multiculturalism to reduce student resistance to diversity education by educating students in interpersonal competencies and skills needed to produce good citizens.

Our Powerful Legacy: Influencing Future Headlines

Presenters: Kate Linder and Tedd Cogar, Indiana University of Pennsylvania

Program Abstract: Using a multi-media approach, this program will examine current news headlines, creating awareness of how higher education can benefit from a legacy of ethical, moral decision-making. The facilitators will discuss strategies to empower university constituents to live life with integrity, creating better headlines in the future.

Measuring the Impact of Experiential Education on First Year Students

Presenter: Brian Mauro, Ph.D.

Program Abstract: Building a sense of community at a commuter campus can have a great impact on student retention and success. However, developing that community can be difficult. This presentation will provide an overview of how experiential learning as part of an outdoor orientation program influenced students' academic and social integration. The data collected from this research indicates an increase in overall student satisfaction and retention.

Chief Student Affairs Officers Breakfast & Roundtable Discussion

Presenter: Joseph Merkle, York College of Pennsylvania

Program Abstract: "College Student Affairs & Student Life": An open exchange and dialogue on campus and student life issues shared by senior level Student Affairs Officers, including current hot topics, emerging issues of interest/concern, and future planning for Student Affairs programs and services.

Opening Eyes to Diversity

Presenter: Dr. Sue Norton, Edinboro University of Pennsylvania

Program Abstract: "Opening Eyes to Diversity" will explore the impact of ethnocentrism on campus climate. Through the use of activities, video clips, worksheets, guided discussion and role play, participants will experience their own blind spots and assumptions. Processing will include how similar activities can be used to raise student awareness on individual campuses.

Parents of First-Generation College Students: Hovering or Disconnected?

Presenter: Christine Ohl-Gigliotti, Syracuse University

Program Abstract: Working with parents of today's students is essential; however, we know little about parents of first-generation college students. This interactive session will leave you with a clearer understanding of how parents who have not graduate from a four-year college experience their child's entry into the first year of college.

Does a Subculture of Student Leadership Exist?: A Case Study

Presenter: Nicole P. Roop, University of Maryland, College Park

Program Abstract: Research has not been performed to determine a subculture of student leaders, nor why student leaders interact with institutional agents. The intent of this multiple-case study was to investigate the existence of this subculture. The presenter will discuss the study's findings and case study and subculture research in higher education.

Beyond Citations: Crafting a Developmental Framework for Alcohol Intervention

Presenters: Jamie Rossie and Holly Hippensteel, Carnegie Mellon University

Program Abstract: Carnegie Mellon University implemented an alcohol medical assistance protocol in 2000. Dubbed the "amnesty program" by students, it allows for non-disciplinary response in alcohol related medical emergencies when help is sought. This session will discuss the development and implementation of the "amnesty" protocol, exploring both positive feedback and criticisms from our experience.

Student Affairs and Academic Affairs Collaboration: Strategies for Student Success at the Community College

Presenter: Matthew R. Shupp, Community College of Philadelphia

Program Abstract: Research indicates that engagement outside of the classroom is essential to students' academic success. However, multiple priorities with often competing agendas rarely allow community college students the opportunity to participate in extra-curricular activities. Come see how Student Affairs and Academic Affairs at Community College of Philadelphia have collaborated to provide programs and initiatives that have a lasting impact on students' college experience.

Discovering Our Past Legacy: Women's Awareness Program

Presenter: Josette Skobieranda Dau, University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown

Program Abstract: Who was the first woman to serve as a University President? How many women have won a Nobel Prize for literature? What issues are you concerned about within higher education? This session features the film "Real Women Have Curves" and includes discussion about the role of women in college and university settings. Open to everyone.

Supervising a Career Counseling Intern: Methods, Challenges, and Benefits

Presenters: Ryan Sweeney, Ph.D. and Jennifer Cwiklinksi, M.A., University of Pittsburgh

Program Abstract: Supervision is a key component to an intern's training and future success. This program will explore the role that supervision plays in the personal and professional development of a Career Counseling intern. Specific methods utilized in supervision, challenges encountered in the supervisory relationship, and ways an intern can benefit a career services office will be discussed.

Create a Safe Zone Program for Your School

Presenter: Audrey Thrasher, York College

Program Abstract: Do you feel LGBT students/staff are not supported on your campus? Well, YOU can do something about it! Come and learn how to create a Safe Zone program which focuses on education and acceptance and how to tailor the program to your school's needs.

“What is the Constituencies Commission and Why Should We Care?”

By Kate Linder, Constituencies Commission Chair,
Indiana University of Pennsylvania

Greetings PCPA members, I hope you are enjoying the summer months as you continue the challenging and rewarding work inherent to higher education. I write to re-introduce one of PCPA's commissions, the “Constituencies Commission,” and to invite your involvement in achieving its important objectives. This Commission, which is part of the PCPA executive board, is responsible for: identifying and addressing issues of concern to student affairs professionals who are members and allies of traditionally under-represented groups; monitoring and disseminating information on state and federal legislation (for example, information pertaining to affirmative action, drug and alcohol policies, policies affecting the management and execution of university disciplinary processes, and other policies which impact higher education); and, working collaboratively with other PCPA Commissions, the Executive Board, and the membership to continuously assess and enhance the organization's leadership and competence in each of these areas.

As you can see, the Constituencies Commission has significant responsibility for addressing key issues at our institutions that affect the core experiences of our faculty, staff, and students. The parameters of the way we do business in a multiplicity of areas are defined by state and national legislation. Our institutions' recruitment, retention, reputation, and rates of matriculation are directly impacted by the quality of the college and university environment experienced by our faculty, staff, and students. The Constituencies Commission embodies the theme of the 26th Annual PCPA Conference to be held October 14-16, 2007 - we are charged with “leaving a legacy” at our colleges and universities by promoting environments that are safe, healthy, productive and welcoming to all individuals and which embrace (not just tolerate or ignore) a diversity of personal characteristics, values, beliefs, traditions, and dreams.

If you have passion, commitment, and/or expertise in the areas of diversity, substance abuse, disciplinary issues, or if you're fascinated by the political process and interested in current legislative issues, put this newsletter down for just a moment, and email your desire to get involved to me at klinder@iup.edu. This is an exciting time for the Constituencies Commission as we expand our opportunities to make a positive difference in the lives of our students and each other throughout the state. I look forward to creating the Constituencies Commission's legacy with you.

ANNOUNCINGChief Student Affairs Officers Breakfast and Roundtable Discussion

A special feature of PCPA's Annual Conference is the Breakfast and Roundtable Discussion program for chief student affairs officers which brings senior level administrators together for informal, yet focused dialogue on the very important and challenging work on and off our campuses. The Conference Keynote Speaker will offer expert perspectives on our students and issues facing colleges today (as part of our 'Roundtable').

Please join your colleagues from around the State of Pennsylvania for this special program on Monday, October 15th at 8:30 a.m. in the Radisson Hotel Pittsburgh – Monroeville.

CALLING FOR:PAST OFFICERS OF PCPA!

PCPA Executive Board is interested in recruiting past executive board members for POAC, Past Officers Advisory Committee.
